CALIFORNIA ELECTORAL VOTE Announcement Made by Secretary of State Jordan.

Sacramento, Calif., Nov. 9 .- Because of the closeness of the contest be-ween President Wilson and Charles J. Hughes in California it was pre-licted this afternoon by Secretary of State Jordan that there is likely to be a split in the electoral vote of the two parties

Jordan said he was 30 sure that some of both the republican and dem-ocratic electors will be chosen that he has already decided to ask both parties to delegate representatives to be present when the official count is

The count will probably start about next Thursday after the semi-official count of votes has been made by the count of votes has been made by the county beards of supervisors.

Jordan says there is no provision of law providing for a recount where the election for presidential electors is close, congress relying upon the certification of the state's chief executive as the count has been made by the secretary of state.

the secretary of state.

In 1912 two democratic electors were chosen in California along with republicans—Griffin, democrat, winning over J. W. Finney, republican, and Delvalle, democrat, beating M. A. Luce, republican. There are several other cases in the history of California where presidential elections all have peen so close as to split the electoral vote, says ordan. This occurred in 1880, 1892 and also in 1896.

Bridgeport.—Events have justified the contention of Robert D. Giuseppi Lalima Jabs Wife of Abraham Caplan in Dispute Over Cow-Claims Self-Defence-Death of Davis C. Anderson, at Watch Hill-State Returning Board Counting Vote-Mission Sunday School Election.

Gluseppe Lalima and Abraham Caplan are unfriendly next door neighbors in Canal street and for more than a year there has been trouble between the families that was temporarily quieted by police intervention. Thursday morning information come to Polymer the Capland Capla day morning information came to Po-liceman Michael Curtin that Lalima had committed a murderous assault upon Mrs. Caplan, and he hurried to the house by automobile. He found Mrs. Caplan lying helpless on the ground, with Lalima standing over her with a pair of shears in hand and ground, with Lalima standing over her with a pair of shears in hand and holding in the other hand a rope that

Mrs. Caplan was assisted to her feet and taken into her house, where she was attended by Dr. Payne. She was bleeding from the mouth and had se-vere bruises on her side, hip and right leg. She said her cow went over on a Lalima's land and when she went to Lalima's land and when she went after it Lalima refused to give up the cow, kicked the woman and knocked her down with a stick of cordwood. Acting upon this statement, Policeman Curtin arrested Lalima and took him to the police station.

Lalima claims that the Caplan wom an had repeatedly threatened to kill him and always insulted him upon sight. He said the cow came over on his land several times and did much damage. Thursday morning he took possession of the cow and when Mrs. Caplan came and demanded the animal e refused to release her, intending to old the cow until his demand for payment of damages, was met. He says that then Mrs. Caplan assaulted him with a piece of fence rail which he wrested from her. She then came at him with a pair of shears and threatened to kill him. He took the shears away from the woman before she did him harm. All this time he held the cow by a rope. Powerful Cry for Peace. "If at and after the end of the war "If at and after the end of the war the world will only become fully conscious of the horrifying destruction of life and property, then through the whole of humanity there will ring out a cry for peaceful arrangements and understandings which as far as within human power will avoid the return of such a monstrous catastrophe. This cry will be so powerful and so justified that it must lead to some result. Germany Will Cooperate.

"Germany will honestly co-operate examination of every endeavor to for its possible realization This all the more if the war, as we expect and trust, shall create political conditions that do full justice to the free development of all nations, of small as well as great nations. Then the principle of justice and free development, not only on the continent, but also on the seas, must be made valid. This, to be sure, Lord Grey did not mention."

Disagrees With Lord Grey. The chancellor pointed out that Lord Grey's ideas in regard to interantional uarantees of peace seemed to possess eculiar character in that they into consideration only British wants. Neutrals which during the war had to accept in silence British domination of the seas were to form a union after the war when, England hopes, she will have conquered Germany, in order to anarome that the British along the state of the season was a superior to the season will be a superior to the season was a superior to the season will be superior to the season was a superior to the season will be superior to the season was a superior to the season will be superior to the season was a superior to the season will be superior to the season was a superior to the season will be superior to the season was a superior to the season will be superior to the season will bear the season will be superior to the season will be superior to have conquered Germany, in order to guarantee that the British plans will prevail under the new condition. The chancellor said it was known on relia-ble authority that in 1915 Great Britain and France promised to Russia dictatorial domination of Constantinople, the Bosphorus and the west shore of the Dardanelles, with the hinterland land and that Asia Minor should be divided among the entente powers. These plans, he continued, probably were of interest for neutrals, who were expected to guarantee this order things. The British government, he asserted, has kept silent in regard to these plans, in spite of questions asked in parliament

No More Aggressive Coalitions. "The first condition for the evolu-ion of international relations by way of arbitration and peaceful comprom-ise of conflicting interests, ought to be that no more aggressive coalitions be formed," the chancellor continued. Germany is at all times ready to enter a league of peace which will re-strain the perturbator of peace. German Policy Not One of Conquest

"The history of international rela-tions before the war stands clear be-fore the eyes of all the world. What made France join with Russia? Ai-sace and Lorraine. What did Russia want? Constantinople, Why did England join them? Because Germany had become too strong for her, by peaceful toil. And what did we want? Lord Grey says that Germany with her first offer of Belgian and French interrity wanted to purpose from integrity wanted to purchase from England permission to take of the French colonies whatever she pleased. Even to the most insane person in Germany it never occurred to assault France in order to rob her of her colonies. It was not this which was Eu-rope's doom, but the fact that the British government favored French and Russian plans of conquest, which could not be obtained without a Eu-ropean war."
